CUMBERLAND SCHOOL OF LAW, SAMFORD UNIVERSITY Master of Comparative Law

I. PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Cumberland School of Law, Samford University, offers a unique opportunity for international judges, justices, law professors, prosecutors and legal practitioners to obtain a Master of Comparative Law degree (MCL) from an American Bar Association-accredited law school without having to spend a continuous academic year in residence. The law school began the MCL program in 1994 and has conferred 34 MCL degrees.

Each MCL candidate must spend two June/July summer semesters in residence attending classes and satisfactorily complete Cumberland School of Law courses totaling at least 16 credit hours. Classes are conducted on the Samford University Campus in June. Students have the opportunity to attend a Cumberland School of Law study-abroad program for the July portion of the program; the 2009 Cumberland study-abroad program will be held in England at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge.

Each MCL candidate is also required to complete a thesis approved by the MCL Graduate Degree Program Faculty Committee. Each student chooses a thesis topic in consultation with the MCL program director. All course work and the thesis must be satisfactorily completed within five years from the time that the candidate enters the MCL program.

II. MCL DEGREE REQUIREMENTS

MCL degree candidates are expected to complete eight credit hours per summer semester, including a required course treating legal research and writing for international scholars during the first semester and a required advanced seminar during the second semester. In addition to the required courses, the MCL candidate may enroll in other courses offered in the substantial law school summer curriculum, as well as courses designed especially for the program. In previous years, MCL candidates have taken courses treating alternative dispute resolution, business taxation, comparative constitutional law, comparative criminal procedure, comparative taxation, comparative trial systems, comparative remedies, law of the European Union, international business transactions, international law, comparative legal ethics, world trade organization, English legal system, intellectual property, directed legal research and the history of the law of nations.

MCL candidates are required to maintain a minimum of a "B" average to satisfy degree requisites (this is a 3.0 minimum on a 4.0 academic scale). The program director may, however, waive the grade point average requirement for MCL candidates for whom English is not their primary language and may allow such students to take course work on a pass/fail basis. Students, with the approval of both the faculty teaching the applicable courses and the program director, may be allowed to write papers treating topics compatible with the course subject matter in lieu of examinations.

Participants in the 2009 MCL program should plan to arrive in Birmingham on May 30. The program director will offer transportation from the Birmingham airport to the residence hotel on May 30. The residence hotel will be selected by the program director, and all MCL students will reside at the selected location. Registration and classes will commence on June 1. The first four weeks of class, commencing on June 1, will be conducted on the Birmingham campus of Samford University. Following examinations on June 24, the MCL candidates will travel to Cambridge to commence the second month of the program.

The Cambridge program begins on Sunday, June 28, 2009 with an orientation reception for faculty and students. Classes at Cambridge commence on Monday, June 29, 2009. The program ends on July 30. Examinations for Cambridge are scheduled for July 28 & 29. Beginning MCL candidates should register for 2009 with the program director prior to May 1, 2009. Early registration is encouraged. First-year MCL students must attend the June portion of the program to complete the required course before they will be eligible for additional MCL classes. Second-year MCL candidates should inform the program director of their intent to participate during the 2009 semester as early in 2009 as possible.

MCL candidates who have completed their first semester in residence in Birmingham may attend both June and July classes in 2009 or, if the student's circumstances require, only the Birmingham or Cambridge portion of the program. Courses offered during June of the candidates' second year in Birmingham will be designed to reflect the student's thesis interest if possible. Participation during both June and July is recommended for both entering and second-year students during each year of participation if the student's circumstances allow.

III. FACULTY AND COURSES TO BE OFFERED ON THE SAMFORD UNIVERSITY CAMPUS DURING JUNE 1-24, 2009

Professor Belle H. Stoddard will offer a two-credit-hour Legal Research and Writing for International Scholars course especially designed for international jurists, lawyers, and scholars. The course is required of all MCL students. It will cover the fundamental principles of legal analysis and legal style, as well as research methodology in the U.S. legal system. Students are required to write an objective memorandum and a persuasive document, as well as examine stylistic implications of written opinions and legal documents in the U.S. legal culture.

Professor David M. Smolin and Desembargadora Cristina Zucchi will offer a two-hour Comparative Constitutional Law course. This course provides a comparative examination of constitutional concepts in common law and civil law legal systems, with emphasis on the legal cultures of Brazil and the United States. Consideration is given to separation of powers, federalism, fundamental rights, equal protection, due process of law, free speech, and freedom of religion. Readings and class discussion emphasize the comparative analysis of both U.S. and Brazilian judicial decisions.

Second-year MCL students will participate in a three-hour advanced research and writing seminar led by the program director. This seminar is designed to be a resource for students as they research and write on the thesis topic that they select in consultation with the program director.

Students have the opportunity to select additional courses, in consultation with the program director, to complete the required number of credit hours.

IV. CAMBRIDGE STUDY-ABROAD PROGRAM June 28 – July 30, 2009

A. KEY DATES IN THE CAMBRIDGE PROGRAM

A reception for arriving students and faculty will occur on the evening of Sunday, June 28 at 6:30 P.M. The reception will include an orientation for students and faculty concerning Sidney Sussex College, our residential college, and the Cambridge area. Further information concerning Sidney Sussex College may be found at www.sid.cam.ac.uk.

Classes will be conducted Monday through Thursday of the first week of the program for the one-hour course treating the English Legal System and the European Union. The examination for this course will be conducted on Friday morning, July 3. The normal class schedule, offering classes Monday through Friday, will vary during the second and third week of classes. During the second week of classes we will not have classes on Friday, July 10, to provide a three-day weekend for travel or study. The third week of classes is planned to accommodate a field trip to the Royal Courts of Justice, lunch at the Middle Temple Inn of Court and a trip to Parliament following lunch on July 15. The program will provide bus transportation to and from London for the visit.

The last day of classes will occur on July 27 and final examinations will be conducted on July 28 and July 29 for courses other than the one-hour course conducted during the first week of the program. Students, other than those who make individual arrangements with the program director, should plan to arrive at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, on Sunday, June 28 and depart prior to 9:30 A.M. on July 30. The program cannot furnish lodging either before June 28 or following our scheduled departure date. A closing dinner will be offered for students and faculty on Saturday evening, July 25. A summary calendar of events and classes for the program appears at the end of this brochure.

B. 2009 CAMBRIDGE FACULTY AND COURSES

MCL students attending the Cambridge Study-Aboard Program will select two of the two-hour courses below for four credit-hours of the maximum allowable five-hours. The fifth hour available is Barrister Jenkala's one-hour course during the first week of the program. Course selection will occur in consultation with the program director. Travel from Birmingham to Cambridge can occur after June 24 and arrival in Cambridge should be planned for June 28, 2009.

The English Legal System and European Union: A Comparative Overview (1 hr.) Adjunct Professor Adrian Jenkala

This course explores the English Legal System, the role of the judiciary, and the current interface of the English system with the European Union. The course offers students a unique opportunity to understand the practical and academic aspects of the emerging constitutional basis for the European Union and its effects on the English system of justice.

Professor Jenkala is a graduate of London University (B.S. and B. of Laws), University of Westminster (Diploma in Law), Inns of Court School of Law (Bar Finals) and a member of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators. He has over twenty years experience as Barrister with advocacy rights in all of the courts of England and the European Court of Justice.

Comparative Constitutional Law: England and the United States (2 hrs.) Professor Brannon P. Denning and Adjunct Professor Adrian Jenkala

This course explores the constitutional cultures of England and the United States, with emphasis on the distinguishing characteristics of the constitutional framework in the two countries, judicial review, governmental structure and powers, as well as individual liberty recognition and protection. No prerequisite constitutional law course is required.

Professor Denning is a graduate of the University of the South (magna cum laude), University of Tennessee School of Law (J.D. magna cum laude). He spent two years in the health law group at Baker Donelson in Memphis. In 1997 he moved to Yale Law School where he took a position as a research associate and Senior Fellow, earning an LL.M. From 1999-2003, he taught at the Southern Illinois University School of Law before joining the Cumberland faculty.

Comparative Counter-Terrorism Law (2 hrs.)

Assistant Professor Sharon Finegan, South Texas College of Law

This course is designed to provide students with an understanding of legal mechanisms for dealing with terrorism and terrorists; and how government legal responses to terrorism implicate human rights. The primary focus is on the response to terror in the United States, although consideration will be given to other national responses. This enables exploration of specific response modalities, such as the prosecution of terrorists, the use of military force to deal with terrorists, immigration controls, and intelligence collection targeting terrorists. In addition to the text, Gregory E. Maggs, Terrorism and the Law, Cases and Materials (Thompson West Publishing), several law review articles will serve as a basis for considering how terror response efforts implicate human rights.

Professor Finegan is a graduate of the University of Virginia (B.A., History), American University Washington College of Law (J.D., summa cum laude; law review articles editor), and Columbia University School of Law (LL.M). She has clerked for a Federal District Judge in the Eastern District of Virginia and practiced law with Skadden, Arps in New York. Before joining the South Texas College of Law faculty in 2007, she was a Westerfield Fellow at Loyola University New Orleans College of Law.

Resolving Disputes Across Cultures (2 hrs.)

Professor Nancy L. Schultz, Chapman University School of Law

The course will involve discussion of negotiation and mediation strategies and techniques, with emphasis on sensitivity to working with people from other cultures and backgrounds. Topics will include negotiation courtesies, expectations as to directness of communication, the importance of relationships, and ethical issues. Students will practice communication, negotiation, and mediation skills, and they will learn how negotiation and mediation relate to litigation and the legal context. Students will also have the opportunity to learn directly from professionals from other countries.

Professor Schultz is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin (B.A.), and the University of Pennsylvania (J.D.). After private practice at Ballard, Spahr, Andrews, & Ingersoll, and Schnader, Harrison, Segal, & Lewis in Philadelphia, she taught at Villanova University Law School, and George Washington University Law School before joining the faculty of Chapman University School of Law.

Comparative Consumer Protection Law (2 hrs.)

Professor Michael D. Floyd

This course explores various types of consumer protection legislation in the United States, and compares the U.S. approach to comparable laws in other countries, with an emphasis on the larger economies in the European Union. Topics include consumer credit issues, unfair and deceptive acts and practices, and other consumer contract issues.

Professor Floyd is a graduate of Princeton University (A.B., magna cum laude, economics), New York University (M.S., with distinction, accounting), Emory University School of Law (J.D., with distinction, Robert W. Woodruff Fellow, Order of the Coif). He served as Clerk for Judge James C. Hill, United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit, 1987-1988 before entering private practice with Sutherland, Asbill & Brennan, Atlanta, Ga., 1988-1991. He joined the Cumberland faculty in 1991. Professor Floyd is a Certified Public Accountant and former banking executive. He serves as the Cumberland School of Law Director of International Studies, and as program director for the MCL and Cambridge programs.

ESTIMATED MCL CANDIDATE EXPENSE BUDGET-2009

A. TUITION per summer semester (includes both Birmingham and Cambridge): $4,000

Academic tuition for MCL candidates for 2009 is $4,000.

B. ACCOMMODATIONS AND ESTIMATED BIRMINGHAM BUDGET. Housing: May 30 – June 26: $1,600

This is the approximate cost of a furnished efficiency apartment or residence hotel room, including electricity, water, cable TV, adequate furnishings, linens, towels, and kitchen appliances. Local telephone services are furnished (does not include long distance). This cost may vary slightly, more or less, depending upon location and availability. The MCL Program Director will make the necessary arrangements for lodging and the law school will furnish transportation for necessary travel between the law school and the residence hotel.

Law Books, Full Summer Semester:	$ 250
Laundry and Dry Cleaning:	$ 100
Approximate Cost for Entertainment:	$ 200
Approximate Cost for Food:	$ 600
Incidental Expense Not Budgeted:	$ 200
Registration Fee:	$100

TOTAL ESTIMATED BIRMINGHAM

HOUSING AND MISCELLANEOUS BUDGET $ 3,050

C. CUMBERLAND-AT-CAMBRIDGE ACCOMMODATIONS AND ESTIMATED BUDGET. Administration, Housing and Meals furnished in Cambridge: $3,900

Students will be housed in Sidney Sussex College. The accommodations at Sidney Sussex are modern single en-suite bedrooms, i.e., a single bedroom with private bath, with linens and towels furnished. The en-suite rooms were recently built, with in-room internet connections available. Breakfast and lunch are included in the housing and meal allowance for each registered student each day of class with breakfast provided on weekends. Lodging will be provided from Sunday afternoon, June 28; there are no arrangements for early arrival. (This is graduation weekend in Cambridge, so accommodations for early arrival are in short supply.) Departure from Cambridge on Thursday, July 30 must occur prior to 9:30 A.M. unless the student makes other arrangements with Sidney Sussex College. Evening meals may be purchased in one of the many local restaurants convenient to the lodging. Other than the closing dinner on Saturday, July 25, the evening meal will not be provided by the study-abroad program.

Other Approximate Costs for Cambridge:

Meals Not Furnished by the Program in Cambridge:	$900
Ground transportation within England:	$400
Miscellaneous Expenses:	$700

TOTAL ESTIMATED CAMBRIDGE

HOUSING AND MISCELLANEOUS BUDGET $ 5,900

D. INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL

International travel expense is not included in this budget due to the wide variation of points of departure and return. Early reservations should be made for travel to Birmingham and England. The program director will offer schedule suggestions on request.

NOTE: New immigration requirements in the United Kingdom require participants to obtain a student visa. Detailed information will be provided to each applicant as soon as it is available.

E. MEDICAL INSURANCE

Each MCL candidate must participate in Samford University's required medical insurance program for the summer semester. The plan provides medical insurance benefits for international students, scholars, trainees and scientists studying in the USA. The 2009 rates for the insurance program are as follows:

UNDER AGE 30		AGE 30 AND OLDER
Student:	$153	Student:	$181
Spouse:	$483	Spouse:	$561
All Children:	$371	All Children:	$470

There is not a monthly option for coverage; candidates must purchase insurance for the entire summer semester at the rates listed above. The dates of coverage for 2009 will be June 1 – August 22, 2009.

Total estimated cost of program participation includes tuition ($4,000), living expenses at Birmingham ($3,050) and Cambridge ($5,900), and the required insurance for the 2009 summer MCL program. These estimated costs do not include air travel to Birmingham and Cambridge.

F. REGISTRATION FEES FOR THE MCL PROGRAM

A registration fee of $100 is required to be submitted with the application. The registration fee is nonrefundable unless denial of the application occurs due to full enrollment in the program. The registration fee is included in the total estimated cost of the 2009 summer program enumerated above. Registration fees are payable only for the first summer of residency.

VI. ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

Samford University admits students of any race, color, gender, or national or ethnic origin to all the rights, privileges, and activities generally accorded or made available to all its students. In accordance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Samford does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, gender, handicap, or national or ethnic origin in the administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, employment policies, scholarship or loan programs, and athletic and other school-administered programs. Inquiries concerning compliance with these laws and regulations thereunder should be directed to the Vice President and Dean of Students, Samford University, Birmingham, Alabama 35229.

Applicants to the Master of Comparative Law Program must present an official transcript, translated if necessary into the English language (official translation is not required), evidencing that they have graduated from an accredited law school in their country of origin or country in which they attended law school, a copy of their law degree, proof satisfactory to the director of the MCL program that they have sufficient proficiency in the English language to successfully complete the MCL curriculum, and an affidavit (form will be supplied by the University) or other writing deemed satisfactory by the University, which documents available adequate financial support while in residence at the University and University sponsored study-abroad programs. The director of the MCL program will evaluate both the transcript and English proficiency on an individual basis. The TOEFL language proficiency test may be required at the discretion of the program director.

VII. GENERAL TRANSPORTATION INFORMATION

Students participating in the Master of Comparative Law program will be responsible for transportation to and from their home country to Birmingham, Alabama, U.S.A., and from Birmingham to Cambridge, England, with return to their place of residence in the student's home country. Airlines provide a variety of reduced fare plans and early booking can create substantial savings. Summer flights to the United States and England are quickly filled, hence travel arrangements should be made early.

VIII. PASSPORTS

Any required passports and visas for international travel are the responsibility of the individual MCL student. Early application is recommended. The program director is available for consultation at students' request.

IX. MATERIALS FOR COURSE OF STUDY

Information concerning casebook materials for courses offered will be available from the program director in sufficient time to allow some preparation by students prior to the summer semester. Individual students who wish to have course materials for early preparation should request the necessary information.

X. RESPONSIBILITY AND MODIFICATIONS

The sponsoring law school will not be responsible for personal injury, medical expenses, or for loss or damage to personal property. Students must maintain medical insurance coverage for accidents or illness which may occur during their participation in this program and, if the student deems such desirable, insurance covering loss or damage to personal property and trip cancellation insurance. Cumberland School of Law, Samford University, reserves the right to change any aspect of the program which circumstances make necessary or desirable. Participants will be notified as promptly as practicable of material changes or cancellation of the program.

XI. REFUND POLICY

Participants who withdraw before May 1, 2009, will receive a refund of all monies prepaid other than the non-refundable application fee. Participants withdrawing after the beginning of the program on June 1, 2009, will receive no refunds. In the event of cancellation of the program prior to program beginning, all monies prepaid, including the application fee, will be refunded.

XII. CLASS SCHEDULES

Class schedules for MCL students will be determined for students participating in Birmingham on June 1, 2009 during the registration process. Classes are held at the Birmingham campus generally Monday through Friday. Each MCL student should consult with the program director, in advance of commencing classes each semester, concerning courses to be taken during both the Birmingham and Cambridge portions of the 2009 Program. A schedule of events for the Cambridge program will be found at the end of these materials.
